

Workshop:

Economic Empowerment

From women participation in vocational training to transformative change in their life and societies

Crosscutting question

What are key aspect, issues, learnings related to the sharing of responsibilities and (re-)distribution of unpaid care work?

How is addressing women's high share of unpaid care work an enabler/disabler for transformative change?

1. Communication: there need to be a focus on communication about and visibility of role models - What can men and women do? It will help to diversify the access to jobs that are traditionally considered men-jobs.
2. Skills certification and mobility: VSD programs need to be tailored to address the issues faced by women who have skills such as household care, childcare, cooking... Problems such as: mobility, family chores (→ less time to attend training) and the fact that those skills are not traditionally considered by centers for skill certification.
3. Data: There need to be clear and informative data on what is being done (the work) and what percentage of women are working without being paid.
