

EDITORIAL

Dear Health Network Members,

Another year rich of events and work is slowly coming to an end. The 6th edition of the Health Network Newsletter gives a flavour of the manifold activities that took place in the last three months. We wish you an interesting read!

The turn of the year also always gives space for new ideas and New Year resolutions. In this sense, we would like to take this opportunity to inform you that the Health Network will organise and conduct a Global F2F in Switzerland in November 2017 (see below), bringing together not only SDC personnel working on bilateral and global health programmes all over the world but also our partners. We are very much looking forward to this event!

We wish you and your loved ones a joyful festive season as well as a healthy and happy new year!

Assessing and improving quality of health services for effective Universal Health Coverage

In global debates on UHC, much emphasis is placed on access for all and financial protection. Yet, quality of service is a crucial factor when translating service and population coverage into positive health outcomes. A recent article describes a quality assessment methodology using an electronic format that can be embedded in supervision activities and conducted by council health staff. Read more>>

HQ ACTIVITIES SDC AND NGOS

SDC's Support to Scaling Up Nutrition (SUN) Movement Extended

ENGAGE • INSPIRE • INVEST

After an initial support through the Global Programme Food Security, SDC has decided to continue its engagement with SUN and support the movement in strengthening the multi-stakeholder engagement and capacities on country level and facilitate the learning among SUN countries. The Global Programme Food Security and the Global Programme Health will work in close collaboration for this engagement, which arises to 4 Mio CHF during the next SUN Strategy Period 2016-2020. ## Towards a Strengthened UNAIDS Operating Model

6th-9th of December, the 39th UNAIDS Programme and Coordinating Board (PCB) took place under Swiss chairmanship in Geneva. The PCB took decisions for action related to community involvement and financing, HIV paediatric prevention, treatment and care and access to medicine. In order to address UNAIDS' financial deficit and enhance its efficacy, the PCB mandated UNAIDS to present a proposal to the 40th PCB in June 2017 on how to strengthen its operating model. ## Swiss UNAIDS Field Visit on HIV/AIDS and Drug Policy - Back to back to the UNAIDS PCB

On 9th of December, Switzerland offered PCB members a field visit. At the example of Geneva, Switzerland shared its experiences of the four pillar drug policy, which had a major impact on reducing the AIDS epidemic in Switzerland. The visit to various institutions underlined the need for a multi-sectoral coordination and the importance of putting people's needs at the centre of the response. ### Marianna Paschal Balampama, Policy Advisor Health, Swiss Embassy in Tanzania

With a decade of practical experience in health systems strengthening, in July 2016 I took up a Health Policy Advisor position at the Swiss Embassy in Tanzania. This year, Switzerland is the Chair of Development Partners in Health in Tanzania. My thrilling role consists of spearheading proactive engagement between the Tanzanian government and development partners in improving health care. For instance, a ground-breaking joint initiative we are actively advancing is a mechanism of disbursing funds from central government directly to health facilities to ensure optimal quality of health services. Previously, I had a privilege to work in health systems research at Ifakara Health Institute, contributing significant evidence to improving health service delivery, quality of human resources and governance.

I have a great interest in understanding social and economic determinants of health. Many times it is known what to do for good health – but the opposite happens! As such, I studied clinical medicine, sociology and international health.

I am passionate about nature and animals; my favourite pastime is foraging in plant nurseries for unique species to adopt!

Federico Peter, Junior Programme Manager, SDC Global Programme Health

I am a physician trained in internal medicine with a diploma in tropical medicine. After having worked in several hospitals in various countries (Switzerland, Spain, Nicaragua and Tanzania), I joined the Swiss Agency for Development and Cooperation in May 2016 as Junior Programme Manager in the Global Programme Health, based in Berne. At the Headquarter, I am supporting the realisation of different projects, ranging from the topic of global health governance through to universal health coverage and communicable diseases. In January 2017, I will move to Geneva, in order to work at the Swiss Mission to the United Nations Office and to other international organisations. At the Mission I will be mainly responsible as Swiss contact person for the Global Fund to Fight AIDS, Tuberculosis and Malaria.

Carole Küng, Executive Secretary, Swiss Malaria Group

In 2014, I've been appointed to build up the Swiss Malaria Group Secretariat. The network brings together Swiss research institutions, private sector stakeholders, public institutions as well as civil society organisations committed to effectively fight malaria. It inspires me to work with our various member organisations and partners, who jointly drive innovation, raise awareness, advocate and foster technical exchange in order to bring malaria interventions to affected countries.

I am a biologist by training with a social-science oriented master degree in Sustainable Development. My previous work in consultancy and communication for sustainable development within Switzerland and internationally and the experience gained in managing diverse stakeholder networks prepared me for this very multifaceted position.

The SDC Health Network serves as a gateway to the latest SDC Health Policy and Practice, the Swiss contribution to reaching the Sustainable Development Goals related to Health, as well as to general information about the work we are doing.
